Five Americans Arrive in Hong Kong from China

Released After Detained for Years By Communists

HONG KONG (AP)—Five Americans arrived in Hong Kong today from Red China aboard two British freighters which had run the Chinese Nationalist blockade from Shanghai.

One American, a Catholic nun, was so weak she had to be carried ashore. Another, a young Houston, Tex., cotton broker, was reported in serious physical condition.

The five civilians, detained in Red China for many years, were released under terms of a Geneva agreement between Communist China and the United States.

Those reaching the Free World today:

Eva Stella Dugay, Sister Theresa, 62, a native of New York who was a nun at the Roman Catholic Carmelite convent in Shanghai. She had been seriously ill in Shanghai but the Communists refused her an exit permit. She had to be carried ashore.

Dilmus T. Kanady, 36, Houston, Tex., last of 10 Americans charged with "crimes" by the Chinese Communists and sentenced to "expulsion." He was reported in poor physical condition but declined hospital treatment on arrival.

Emma Angelina Barry, 13, daughter of an American who has been living in Shanghai with her mother, a white Russian who is not a U. S. citizen but was permitted to leave with her.

Robert Howard Parker, 83, a native of Philadelphia who has lived in China for more than 70 years. Parker, in life insurance and real estate business for 50 years in Shanghai, disclosed the Chinese had operated on his eyes and that he had become blind in one of them.

Mrs. Peter Huizer, American wife of a Dutch businessman who was freed with her. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Munsterman, live in Wolcott, Ind.

John L. Lewis is In Hospital for Rest, Physician Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—John L. Lewis, 75-year-old United Mine Workers leader is in hospital because he "needed a rest."

Dr. John Minor, chief of medical service at Emergency Hospital, said Lewis probably would remain in the hospital for "a few days more." He entered Friday.

He said Lewis is "pretty tired" and was hospitalized "for a check-up to see what's wrong and what isn't wrong."

Area Livestock Meeting Sept. 29 At Shawneetown

Livestock growers in Gallatin county and adjoining counties are invited to attend a meeting at the Gallatin county courthouse in Shawneetown Thursday, Sept. 29, starting at 8 p. m.

The meeting has been announced by Earl Lutz, farm adviser of Gallatin county, who revealed that two experts in the livestock field would be present—one from the University of Illinois and another from a marketing agency.

In discussing the coming meeting Mr. Lutz stated that hogs sold for about $16 last winter and indications are the prices will be the same or lower this year.

World affairs, business conditions, the antibiotic stillbirth, feed supplies and consumer income and demand will be discussed. These reports and their effect on the livestock outlook will help in planning next year's farming operations, it is said.

Fight to Save Lives of 12 with Sleeping Illness

FORT BRANCH, Ind. (AP)—Doctors fought today to save the lives of the remaining victims of a "sleeping sickness" outbreak which has already killed seven persons.

Encephalitis, or "sleeping sickness," has claimed victims in three southwestern Indiana counties and in Kentucky. Twelve surviving cases have been hospitalized. The malady begins with "ordinary fever" and often ends with death within a week or 10 days.

Mosquitoes are believed to be carriers of the strange disease. As a result, health authorities ordered the spraying of homes, ponds and marshes to kill the swarms of insects. The program continued today.

Hopeful Outbreak Checked
However, Dr. Albert Marshall of the state board of health said "we are very hopeful" that the outbreak has been checked.

But Dr. Raymond Geick, an area doctor who conferred with Marshall and Dr. E. Russell Alexander of the U. S. Public Health Service Sunday, indicated the fate of the surviving victims is still in doubt.

"Mortality has been quite high," Geick said, "and one is still on the very critical list."

Geick said persons who contract this type of encephalitis usually have "ordinary fever, some chills, perhaps, generalized aching throughout the body—muscles particularly—symptoms of flu in general."

"Then severe headache... dizziness... there may be nausea and vomiting also. Then nervousness... then usually go into a coma."

"The trouble is, there is no treatment for it."

About all that can be done is to administer good nursing care and antibiotics to prevent further complications, he added.

Marshall said "clinically" the diseases resemble the St. Louis epidemics which killed 205 persons in 1933 and 81 in 1937.

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)—Dismayed Republican leaders privately were conceding today that the heart attack which struck President Eisenhower down shortly would compel him to withdraw from the 1956 campaign.

They feared the magic Eisenhower luck had faded. Democrats privately echoed this belief. They recognized last April that his name had begun to figure substantially in speculation from 1956 if Mr. Eisenhower were not a second term candidate. He stopped such talk when he said he had accepted the chief justiceship with the purpose of leaving politics forever.

But Mr. Eisenhower would be quite as likely to want the Chief Justice to take over if he feels he, himself, must step down. Mr. Warren recognized last April that his name had begun to figure substantially in speculation from 1956 if Mr. Eisenhower were not a second term candidate. He stopped such talk when he said he had accepted the chief justiceship with the purpose of leaving politics forever.

But Mr. Eisenhower and the Republican Party could bring to bear upon Mr. Warren terrific pressure. A real draft would be more seductive than any man, even a chief justice, reasonably could be expected to withstand.

Politicians were leary of discussing for publication the political importance of Mr. Eisenhower's illness.

But the political significance of a presidential illness was topic "A" in this capital today as well as wherever politicians gather across the land. There were both genuine sympathy and hope for Mr. Eisenhower's speedy recovery and anxious pondering what his illness foreshadowed in 1956.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Nixon figured instantly in talk of next year's Republican presidential nomination. The Democratic nomination became a glamorous prize for which there will be a rattling battle in the party tradition.

Some observers counted the changed conditions as favorable to Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson, whom Mr. Eisenhower defeated in 1952. He is to announce this autumn whether he will try again. Bets are down now that he will go.

The American political picture changed basically overnight when the President's indisposition was diagnosed in Denver as a coronary thrombosis.

With the President surely bedded for some weeks and more likely than not planning now to announce that he will not be a candidate for reelection, a contest for Republican party leadership is just around the corner. It could be a bruising affair, damaging to party prospects in the presidential election year.

Four to six weeks of absolute rest generally is regarded as the minimum for a person in Mr. Eisenhower's condition.

But that does not mean Mr. Eisenhower will be unable to work when his convalescence is complete. Radio and now television actually have made the old time American political campaign obsolete. For Mr. Eisenhower to recover, rearrange his mode of life and safely seek and win another presidential election is not an impossibility.

Mr. Eisenhower always has shown considerable reluctance to run again. That he will retire seems now more likely than that he will accept renomination.

Either a failure to recover normally from his heart condition or a desire to establish Nixon strongly as his political successor might persuade Mr. Eisenhower to resign. Nixon would succeed at once and during the remainder of Mr. Eisenhower's term would possess the tremendous advantage of conducting a campaign for presidential nomination from the White House itself. He would be hard to stop under such circumstances.

May Want Warren

Stocks Break After News of Ike's Illness

NEW YORK (AP)—Stocks today suffered their widest one day break in nearly 26 years when they reacted violently to President Eisenhower's illness.

At 1 p. m. the Dow-Jones industrial average stood at 461.53, off 25.92 points or 5.21 per cent. This was the sharpest decline since Oct. 29, 1929 when the average fell 46.57 points. It made a wider drop on only one other day—Oct. 28, 1929—some 38.33 points.

Brokers explained the decline as selling "by the emotional fringe" and one of them said "those that sell will live to regret their impulsiveness."

The market had been rising steadily on belief that the President would run for a second term. Today's selling was said to be based mainly on the changed belief the Republicans would have to seek another candidate.

Traders felt that the President has been sympathetic to business and noted that industry generally has been setting new highs for all time this year.

The drop was not so great when laid against the recent rise. Industrials were back only to Aug. 25 in their average and rails since Aug. 19.

The market opened lower by $1 to $10 a share, quickly met support and rallied, and then resumed their decline.

Near the end of the fourth hour, the selling appeared to have run its course. Prices steadied. Some came back from the day's lows.

Steels, hardest hit of the major groups, was up 3 points or so from their lows. Other sections showed a better undertone.

Before meeting support rails had declined 5.34 per cent and utilities by 2.78 per cent.

About nine billion dollars in valuation was hacked from the list—some of it paper profits, some money losses.

Sales to 1 p. m. totaled 4,430,000 shares, contrasted with a mere 1,240,000 shares in the first three hours of trading on Friday.

Tickers ran late a short time after the opening on a rally.

They fell behind again just before 2 p. m., also on an uptrend.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM: HUMPHREY
WASHINGTON (AP)—Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, in an apparent effort to counter a stock market break, said today "there is no reason to anticipate any change" in Eisenhower administration programs.

In a statement issued by his office, Humphrey said President Eisenhower's illness is a "cause for sadness, but not of alarm."

Grand Tower Man Fined for Leaving Scene of Accident

John Clark of Grand Tower paid fines and costs totalling $193 when arraigned yesterday before Police Magistrate Vern Joyner Jr. on charges of driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident.

He was arrested by city police shortly after midnight Sunday after his car had hit auto number 2.

Chief of Police Ross Lane said the Clark car first hit a car near the postoffice and travelled south on Main and crashed into the car belonging to Peggy Isham, which was parked in front of her home.

The cars were extensively damaged.

Clark was treated for injuries at a local hospital, then taken to the city jail.

Lane also reported that one man was arrested for drunkenness Saturday night when he caused a disturbance on South Main street. When he couldn't pay off, he was turned over to the county.

One speeder also was arrested Saturday night.

Mrs. Eisenhower Keeps Vigil Near President

DENVER (AP)—Across a narrow hallway from where her husband rests under an oxygen tent, the wife of the President of the United States waits in quiet vigil.

Mamie Eisenhower has taken up residence in a small, private bedroom just a few feet from the President's room in the eighth floor tower suite of Fitzsimons Army hospital.

She moved in shortly after her husband was brought there Saturday following a heart attack.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who has had a slight heart ailment herself since early girlhood, is taking her ordeal calmly, White House aides said. The six doctors in attendance on her husband tell her constantly how he's getting along.

She was the first to know something had happened to the President. They sleep in adjoining rooms on the second floor of the gray-brick home of her mother, Mrs. Elvira Doud, and Mrs. Eisenhower heard him tossing restlessly. She rushed to his side.

She then called his physician, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, when the President complained he wasn't feeling well.

To occupy her time, she handles personally many telephone calls, mainly from members of the immediate family. She talks long distance to the President's brothers and locally to "Mama."

Should be Able to Run For His Second Term, President's Doctor Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon today scheduled a White House meeting with administration officials to make plans for carrying on government functions during President Eisenhower's illness.

Nixon scheduled a lunch conference with Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, and Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, deputy assistant to the President.

The officials were expected to discuss constitutional problems involved in delegating to Nixon some or all of the executive powers which the stricken President may not be able to exercise.

Nixon told reporters before the meeting that "there are many legal problems involved" and a ruling from the attorney general is needed.

The Constitution provides that the powers of the President "shall devolve on the vice president" in case of the President's "inability" to discharge them. However, there are no historical precedents for a vice president actually taking over as "acting President."

Adams Returns From Europe
One question is what kind of proclamation or other legal steps might be necessary to give Nixon authority to relieve Mr. Eisenhower of some of the tedious routine of signing official papers which is vested by law in the President.

Adams returned from Europe by plane today, in accordance with a schedule set before the President was stricken by a heart attack Saturday. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. was expected to return to the capital Tuesday from a European trip.

Rogers had been asked for a ruling on the legal aspects of delegating the President's powers.

The Justice Department said a formal legal opinion will be transmitted to the summer White House at Denver as soon as possible.

Officials said it will be up to the summer White House to make the ruling public.

Nixon said the whole government will operate on a "business as usual" basis while the President is ill.

"The President always made it clear that the business of government should go ahead," Nixon said. "He set it up in such a way it can go ahead despite the temporary absence of anyone."

E. Germans Return Two U. S. Fliers After Forced Landing
WARTHA, Germany (AP)—The East Germans Sunday returned two American fliers who made a forced landing Friday in the Communist Zone and promised to return their T33 jet trainer today.

The Americans were Maj. Louis W. Cunningham of El Paso, Tex., and Sgt. Juan P. Gebler of Jersey City, N. J.

An Air Force spokesman said they were "in good condition and had been well-treated," but could not say if they had been questioned by the Communists.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. (AP)—A coroner's jury ruled that a Frankfort county man accidentally shot himself to death Sunday.

Elijah Claxton, 63, West Frankfort, died of a bullet wound in his upper chest. Mrs. Claxton said he was wounded by a bullet from his .32 caliber automatic pistol.

Mrs. Claxton found her husband's body in their home when she returned from church.

Another newspaper, the Chicago Sun-Times, devoted two columns of its front page to a giant cartoon of the hands of Uncle Sam lifted in prayer.

In the churches, the prayer of Dr. Harold B. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston, Ill., was typical. He prayed:

"May the benediction of Thy healing power be upon the President in his illness and grant him strength to bear the burden of the day."

The prayers were echoed in the hearts of millions of Americans, from political leaders to the man on the street, from the big cities to the quiet farm towns.

DREW PEARSON Says: Republicans Even Watch Ike's Laughs To See Whether He'll Run Again: Truman Decides To Oppose Adlai Stevenson For 1956: HST Will Back Harriman Or Kefauver.

WASHINGTON. — Republican leaders are now grasping at any straw in the wind to bolster their hope that Ike will run.

Two of those tricks developed at Denver after Ike made his very discouraging statement that the party should not depend on one man.

First straw came out at a private session with GOP chiefs during which he was briefed by Congressman Richard Simpson of Pennsylvania, chairman of the GOP Congressional committee, on the outlook of House races for 1956.
Ike was particularly interested in "marginal" contests for House seats in various states, urged Simpson to concentrate on winning as many as possible. This made GOP leaders conclude that the President would not have evidenced such concern unless he planned to lead the ticket again.

Second straw took the form of a note taken by GOP Chairman Len Hall about a "business man" who was asked by a friend if he thought the President would accept renomination.

"Well, if he doesn't," replied the business man, "I'll jump off that bridge when he gets to it."

Republicans reported that Ike laughed too heartily for a man who was planning to step aside.

These were meagre straws in the wind, it's true, but they encouraged GOP leaders like Len Hall, who says facetiously that he'll commit suicide if Ike doesn't run.

KHRUSHCHEV'S WISERACKS
Fragments of West German Chancellor Adenauer's secret talks with Soviet leaders in Moscow have now leaked out.

At one point, Communist party boss Khrushchev wisecracked:
"You Germans, too, are to blame for the emergence of communism, for Marx and Engels were born in Germany. You have made your bed. Now lie in it."

Adenauer quickly reminded Khrushchev of a West German banker named Pfordemenges whom the Soviet radio has bitterly denounced.

"You probably know the name of Pfordemenges," smiled Adenauer. "He is a relative of Engels."

HARRY NIXES ADLAI
This will be denied, but ex-President Truman is working behind the scenes to sidetrack the Presidential bandwagon of the man he supported for the presidency in 1952: Adlai Stevenson.

Truman's secret strategy is to line up an array of favorite-son candidates to tie up the votes and block Stevenson at the 1956 convention. As the convention develops, the favorite sons will throw their votes to the strongest candidate, whom Truman expects to be New York's Gov. Averell Harriman or Tennessee's Sen. Estes Kefauver.

The former President has assured Democratic trustworthies that there's nothing personal in his anti-Stevenson maneuvering, that he is acting only for the good of the party. He still believes Stevenson would make a fine president.
He has the highest respect and admiration for him. But he's more convinced than ever that the defeated 1952 candidate lacks mass appeal.

At this writing, the former president has lined up nearly 10 favorite-son candidates, working sometimes directly, sometimes indirectly, with Democratic leaders in each state. The favorite sons include: a host of up-and-coming young governors, such as Pennsylvania's George Leader, New Jersey's Robert Meyner, Michigan's "Seapy" Williams, Connecticut's Abe Ribicoff, Rhode Island's Dennis Roberts, and Maine's Ed
Muskie.

In addition, Georgia's Sen. Dick Russell will go into the convention with a bloc of southern votes, and Speaker Sam Rayburn is quietly picking up delegates of his own.
These two seasoned politicians have no presidential ambitions, but they hope to control enough votes to influence the outcome.

UNDER THE DOME

The flags of the U. S. capital have never flown at half-mast for a finer guy than Rep. John D.
Dingell of Michigan, who died this week. A fearless champion of the little man, he never ducked a fight or a vote on his liberal beliefs.
"You could fight all day with John Dingell and still be his friend," said Congressman Simpson (Pa., R.), who was usually lined up against him. . . . Reed Benson, son of Secretary of Agriculture Benson, is the only Capitol Hill clerk who rides to work in a chauffeured limousine. He works for the Republican Congressional Campaign committee and rides to Capitol Hill in his father's government limousine. . . . Fleur Cowles, separated wife of Loo Magazine's Mike Cowles, has gone to Egypt as a guest of Prime Minister Nasser three times this year.

Who Rides With Wyatt

by Will Henry

Illustrated by NEA, Copyright 1954, 1955 by Will Henry. Used by arrangement with Random House.

XXIX

It wasn't Wyatt's fault that aim got spoiled or Tom's. It was Doc Holliday's.

For the first time in the fight,
Doc had a shot at a man with no ear in his way. Tom screamed like a woman as both barrels of Doc's double went into him. He ran 10 feet around the corner of the building and fell stone-dead.

With Morg down from Tom's bullet, Wyatt leaped to shelter him, yelling, "Stay down, stay down!
Make yourself small!" The leap turned his back to the wounded Billy Clanton. The youngster, still on the ground, made the border shift, throwing his gun to his left hand and leveling it on Wyatt's back. Morg, his mind a long ways off from making himself small, saw him in time. Billy had struggled to his knees to make his shot at Wyatt. Morg shot him through the belly. He staggered up to his feet and Virg, whirling from watching Claiborne vanish into the building, drove a 44 slug into the youth's chest, putting him back down into the dirt.

At this point, Doc dropped his empty shotgun, drew his Colt and ran in toward the Earps. He jumped over Frank McLowry, thinking him dead and done and safe out of it from Wyatt's first shot. He thought wrong. He heard Morg bellow, "Behind you, Doc!" Then Frank was coming up off the ground and snarling, "I've got you!"

"Think so, do you?" Doc came around, throwing the question and his snapshot at Frank, together.

Frank fired with him and Morg threw one in from the sidelines to make it three. The outlaw's shot cut across the muscles of Doc's back. But it was his last shot. Doc's bullet drilled him heart-center and Morg's smashed the top of his head off.

Frank was dead. Tom was dead.
Ike and Claiborne were clear out of it and still running. Only young Billy Clanton, the 17-year-old, was yet in the fight.

He got as far as the north corner of the building wall, hunching his bullet-riddled body along it, trying to get around it and into Fremont as Tom McLowry had done. Virg, who had put the last shot into him, snapped two more at him, both misses. The boy fired back, needing both bloody hands to hold the gun up. Virgil Earp was down with a .45 ripping his left thigh to the bone.

Only Wyatt and Doc were still on their feet, and Doc was shot in the back and couldn't steady his hand for any real fine shooting.

Wyatt did it like a man had to,
like a poor dumb-brute animal that was dying but still dangerous.
He put the first, careful bullet through the boy's hips, anchoring him for the second one through the side of the head and into the brain.

Wyatt had no more than time to look at Morg's wound, and the handful of citizens who had seen the fight from Fremont Street to begin to crowd into the corral, when Johnny Behan came hurrying out of the building door held helped Ike Clanton and Billy Cla-borne get away through. "All right, you men are under arrest!"

One old mossyback in the crowd, a gray-beard billy goat of a hard-rock miner named Beatty Comstock, horned in and spoke right up, some hot about it, too. "By Tophet," yelled the old man, "he done just right and the people hereabouts will uphold him!"

"It was plain murder!" The sheriff was still talking loud.
"You're under arrest—the lot of you!"

"We won't be arrested," said Wyatt quietly. "We'll answer for what we've done when the time comes. But this isn't the time, Johnny!" He put a scathing selfness to the name. "You'd best get out of our way, you understand?"

There's no doubt Johnny Behan understood. What he would have done about it past that point remains to be guessed at. For, coming down Fremont and turning in at the corral right on top of Wy-att's refusal to surrender, was the whole kit and kaboodle of the Citizen's Safety Committee. Mayor J. P. Clum was in charge and not looking for any back talk from Sheriff Johnny Behan or anybody else.

"We'll be responsible for these men," was all he told Behan, and Johnny bought it and backed off.

The wonder was that it took three days to get the warrants sworn out. But Johnny Behan knew just how long it took a public pot to come to the boil. The third morning after the fight he thought he smelled steam. Within an hour he had a big posse of russers deputized and out looking for Wyatt and his brothers with their hip pockets full of murder warrants.

Fortunately, the wind was blowing Wyatt's way, too. He beat the posse to it, surrendering to Judge Wells Spicer and demanding a full court inquiry.

That was some inquiry. It lasted six weeks to the day, and what went on in it would be longer than the rest of the story put together.
In the end, it all added up this simple: Behan could have most of Tombstone believing Wyatt and his brothers were murderers but they couldn't sell it to old Beatty Comstock and a tough dozen other eye-witnesses; nor to hard-minded, string-straight Municipal Judge Wells Spicer. On Dec. 12 Spicer closed the hearings by refusing to recommend an indictment to the grand jury then in session.
And the grand jury refused to make one on its own hook.

Grandma, Jailed In Lieu of Fine, to Begin Legal Fight

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Elsie Hicks, a 51-year-old grandmother who spent eight days in jail rather than pay a $21 traffic fine, vowed today she would launch a new battle against suburban Orland Park officials.

Mrs. Hicks was arrested Sept. 7 for speeding. She told police she was hunting home because she felt "deathly ill." She was fined $21 anyway and decided to work out her penalty in jail at the rate of $2.50 a day as a protest.

Emerging from behind bars Sunday, the angry grandmother said
"the first thing I'm going to do is get in touch with my attorney and begin legal action."

Mrs. Hicks didn't specify her charges, but conceded she was treated like a queen in jail.

"I learned a lot of new words and phrases," she said. "Sometimes I wasn't glad that I asked what they meant."

Parker said Mazuga, armed with a .22 caliber target pistol, went to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Zena Cahoon about 7 p. m. stood on the darkened porch and fired three shots at his wife. Two of the shots missed but one struck Mrs. Mazuga in the left chest, killing her instantly. Parker said Mazuga then walked about a hundred yards from the house and shot himself through the

Redskins Upset Browns 27-17; Packers Jolt Lions

By United Press

After five long years of waiting and hoping, the Washington Redskins and the Green Bay Packers finally caught up with their most hated rivals during the first week-end of the National Football League season.

In a startling kick-off of the 1955 campaign, the Redskins, led by little Eddie LeBaron, handed the world champion Cleveland Browns a 27-17 upset, while the Packers turned in a 29-17 surprise victory over the Detroit Lions, last year's Western Division kings.

It was the Redskins' first victory over Cleveland since the Browns joined the NFL in 1950 and the Packers' first triumph over Detroit in 12 games covering a similar five-year period.

The Baltimore Colts also launched their new season on a bright note by upsetting the Chicago Bears, 23-17, while the Los Angeles Rams turned back the favored San Francisco Forty-Niners, 23-14, in another Sunday tilt.

Legion Defeats Evansville, 1-0, With Romonosky

'Yonie' Whiffs 18, as Odle Homers For Only Run

'Yonie' Romonosky of the Houston Buffs of the Texas league and Dick Odle of the Harrisburg Legion combined effort yesterday afternoon to give the Legion a 1 to 0 win over the Evansville College All-Stars in a game played at the park diamond.

Romonosky using an assortment of curve balls and speed pitches struck out 18 of the visitors and allowed them only three safeties while Odle blasted a long drive into the centerfield lagoon for the only run of the game in the third inning, which stood up as Romonosky kept the losers from getting in scoring position throughout the remainder of the game.

Evansville used Big Jim Nichols on the mound until the sixth inning when Bill Roland of the Evansville Braves took over. Both visiting pitchers were red hot and combined to hold the hard hitting Legion team to only five safeties. They collected nine strikeouts between them.

A large crowd was on hand to witness the contest and saw several fine plays among the best being the one where Maulding of the visitors was retired at third base in the eighth when he tried to stretch a double for three bases. Don Stout picked up the ball in deep center and fired to Flash Griffith, who stayed up as Romonosky pitched to Fred Williams at third who made a diving tag to get the runner at third.

Fred Williams led both teams in the hitting department as he collected two solid safeties in four tries. Besides Odle's homer, Bob Dallas and Carl Griffiths also hit safely to amass the winners' five hit total.

Dick Romonosky caught his brother's pitching all the way for the locals with Ferguson receiving for the losers.

Plans are being discussed to bring in some good club next Sunday in an effort to aid the new baseball field which is being constructed near the fairgrounds. The Legion will probably be the home team if such a game is scheduled. Likely candidates for the opposition as of now include a group of players from the Belleville area who are from teams in the Texas league or possibly the Old Hickory Barons from Tennessee. Any developments will be published as soon as possible.

Condition of Mickey Mantle Only Problem For New York Manager

NEW YORK (AP)—The torrid New York Yankees and the stumbling Brooklyn Dodgers marshaled their forces for workouts in their home parks today with the American league champions 13-10 favorites to win the World Series.

The Yankees were also 13-10 choices to win Wednesday's opening game at Yankee Stadium.

In establishing the Yankees as favorites, the odds-makers were going for the team which will go into the series red hot. The Yankees won 9 out of 10 games to clinch the pennant. The Dodgers, on the other hand, have been coasting along with pitching miseries ever since they clinched the National league pennant on Sept. 8.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees had only one player problem two days before the series opens—the condition of his center field star, Mickey Mantle. Mantle pulled a muscle in his thigh Sept. 23 and hasn't played since.

Stengel said it might be Wednesday before he would know whether Mantle, the American league's leading home run hitter with 37, will be able to play.

Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers had three questionable pitchers—right handers Carl Erskine and Billy Loes and southpaw Johnny Podres. All three have been of little use since mid-season because of injuries.

Loes No. Two for Dodgers

Alston said today that, "as of right now, Loes is my No. 2 pitcher." Previously the Dodgers' center fielder had been figuring on Erskine, an 11-game winner, to hurl the second game of the series but Loes, a 10-game winner, has appeared "much sharper" in recent workouts, according to Alston.

Erskine, who has trouble with his right shoulder since July, now is expected to hurl Friday when the series switches to Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. Podres, who has a rib injury, or southpaw Karl Spooner may pitch the four game—unless Erskine is losing the series by that time.

It will, of course, be the Dodgers' ace, Don Newcombe, with a 20-5 record for the first game. He will be opposed by Ed (Whitey) Ford, one of the two Yankee southpaw aces. Ford has won 18 games and lost seven.

For the second game, Stengel will call on the other lefty, Tommy Byrne, a 16-game winner. Stengel believes his two southpaws have a better chance of beating the right handed power-laden Dodgers in spacious Yankee Stadium instead of little Ebbets Field, where the Brooks always have been poison to lefthanders.

The Harrisburg Stars racked up their 14th win of the season and their seventh in a row Sunday afternoon by downing Golconda, 17-10, the game being played on the losers' diamond.

The Stars picked up 17 runs on 10 hits, while Golconda scored 10 times on six hits. Harrisburg drew 18 bases on balls from the offerings of Cammaro, a lefty with a blazing fast ball but poor control.

He gave up but three hits in six innings, but was always in trouble as the result of his wildness.

Rauh started on the mound for the Stars and after three innings was relieved by Furlong. Rauh, who had trouble with his control, gave up six runs on three hits, five walks and one error.

Furlong was touched for four runs on two hits, two walks and two errors. Stone finished for the Stars and gave up one hit and no runs.

Shewmake led the club at bat with three hits in three tries, including two doubles. Smith had three for five, including a double and Price had two safe blows.

Ziegler and Stone had one hit each. The Stars will practice at 5 p. m. Friday at the town park diamond.

Field Goal Fails As SIU Loses to Illinois Wesleyan

A last minute 35-yard field goal attempt by Southern Illinois university failed Saturday night as the SIU Salukis lost a heart-breaking 14-13 decision to Illinois Wesleyan university at Bloomington.

Only seconds before the field goal attempt, SIU had hammered its way to the 11-yard line before losing 14 yards on a backfield fumble.

That put the ball on Wesleyan's 25 and freshman halfback Carver Shannon of Corinth, Miss., was rushed into the lineup for the field goal try.

After battling the host school to a 7-7 halftime tie, Southern came back strong in the second half to control the ball for almost the entire third period.

On the second play of the final period Southern recovered a fumble on Wesleyan's 11-yard line. SIU fullback Hank Warfield on the next play went through center for the touchdown.

Ed Johnson of Carbondale missed the extra point try, but the touchdown gave Southern a 13-7 advantage.

Sparked by a 15-yard unnecessary roughness penalty against the Salukis, Wesleyan came back with an 84-yard march. Wesleyan halfback John Wilson, former Centralia prep grid star, climaxed the drive with a 28-yard touchdown sprint.

Geno Cantle, Chicago halfback, kicked the extra point for the game-winning margin.

Clever quarterbacking by Bob Klings, Wesleyan signal-caller, plus excellent running by Wesleyan's experienced senior backs, highlighted the game.

Wesleyan scored its initial touchdown in the first quarter on a 32-yard run by Cantle. He also kicked the extra point.

Bill Spratt of Salem scored Southern's first touchdown on a four-yard plunge through center late in the second quarter.

Southern headed the passing department with quarterback Gerald Hart of West Frankfort completing 6 of 14 passes for 73 yards compared to only 36 for the winners. SIU got more first downs (12-7), but Wesleyan led in rushing, 193-119.

The Salukis open their conference and home season in Carbondale Saturday night, Oct. 1, against Central Michigan—last year's conference co-champions.

Valgene Gribble Leading Ground Gainer In Rolla Victory

Valgene Gribble, former Harrisburg Bull Dog fullback, was the leading ground gainer as he rolled off yardage from his left halfback position Saturday afternoon when his team, the Rolla (Mo.) School of Mines and Metallurgy, defeated Washington University of St. Louis, 20 to 13.

The game, played at St. Louis, was televised over KSD-TV and a number of local persons watched the contest.

Gribble alternated with Bill Herrmann as first string fullback and was a line-backer de luxe on the championship Bull Dog team of 1950.

In Saturday's contest he carried the ball 22 times for 88 yards.

UCLA, Stanford, Minnesota, Northwestern Suffer Upsets in Football Openers

By United Press

The first full weekend of the college football season left the "experts" begging for mercy today, still dazed by the upset defeats of such titans as UCLA, Stanford, Minnesota, and Northwestern.

How, the experts want to know, can you figure things like that are going to happen. And how about those "near miss" victories scored by such as Ohio State, Navy, Georgia Tech, and Oklahoma. Where do we go from here?</

Frankfurters Eaten by Americans in Year Would Stretch to Moon and Back

By ALFRED LEECH
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (AP) — A scholarly study by the American Meat Institute shows that all the frankfurters eaten by American this year would stretch to the moon and back.

And there would be enough left over to encircle the earth five times.

To put it in more humdrum terms, Americans consume about 5 1/2 billion frankfurters a year.

Further data gleaned from the magazine National Livestock Producer shows that the average American eats the meat equivalent of 33 hogs, 10 lambs, 8 steers and 4 veal calves.

That's provided he lives to be 83 years of age, today's normal life expectancy.

Travels 1,000 Miles
The frankfurter, considered to be a typically American morsel, emigrated to this country from the old German city of the same name. Its cousin, the wiener, came from Vienna.

The average pound of meat consumed in this country travels 1,000 miles from "open range to kitchen range," as the AMT phrases it.

This is due largely to the fact that two-thirds of all meat is produced west of the Mississippi while two-thirds of it is consumed east of the river.

Regional traditions and geographical meat-eating habits complicate the situation further.

For example, a ring-bologna belt stretches from Oklahoma City northeastward to Detroit. The best market for cold cuts parallels the coal mines and steel mills from eastern Pennsylvania to Milwaukee.

Mason-Dixon Line
Veal calves are a by-product of the dairy industry, and you would expect Wisconsin to consume a lot of veal. But families in New Orleans consume five times as much veal as families in Wisconsin.

More than half of all the lamb produced is consumed in the New York City area. Residents of Chicago and St. Paul eat more fresh pork than anyone else.

If you live in California you probably eat 25 more pounds of beef per year than the average resident of any other state. California's per capita beef consumption runs 2 pounds per week, against the national average of 1 1/2 pounds.

The pork market is divided by the Mason-Dixon line, extended to the West Coast. South of the line smoked pork is the favorite, while Yankees north of the line prefer fresh pork.

The institute had no geographical breakdown on the eating habit of vegetarians.

CORRECTION

The auto and lumber truck, involved in an accident near Stonefort Thursday, were going in opposite directions, it was stated today. Reports of the crash, in which the auto of Webb Hall received a broken windshield and back glass by a falling 2x4, had both auto and truck going south.

Brought Horses

The American Indians did not have horses before the arrival of Europeans upon this continent. First horses seen by the Indians were those brought over by the Spanish invaders of Mexico.

IN 1934 WORLD SERIES, Dizzy Dean (right) shares limelight with his brother Daffy. Dizzy recalls that memorable World Series as he sizes up 1955 contest in accompanying dispatch.

OL' DIZ SIZES UP SERIES: Yankees Lack Punch at Plate; Dodgers on Top

By DIZZY DEAN
As told to Jimmy Breslin
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — (NEA) — The Yankees used to beat Brooklyn in a World Series as easy as Ol' Diz used to strike out guys when I was the big hero of the St. Louis Cardinals back in 1934 and thereabouts. But this is one time you're gonna see Brooklyn on top. They tell me Joe DiMaggio and Billy Cox think the Brooklyns will fold when they take the field against the Yankees, but I can't see that.

To begin with, the Yankees have a lot of pitchers in Whitey Ford. He's a left-hander and they say them fellas can't go against Brooklyn. Well, Ford might. But the trouble is, I ain't seen anybody else on that club who could put the slug on the Brooklyns. And I've seen the Yankees a lot this year in my telecasting job for CBS "Game of the Week."

Tommy Byrne has had a fine year. I know, and at times Bob Turley and Don Larsen have looked good. But I figure them Brooklyns hitlers to wear out pitchers this time, seeing as they are Yankee pitchers.

Most of the Yankee attack this season came right from Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra. And right there, I think, is the center of this whole debate.

You take Mantle, and if Ol' Diz is back a few years he gives him the high fast one on the inside and he strikes out. Oh, he hits the ball a mile during the season—but in a seven-game World Series these strikeouts hurt and that's what I figure that guy will do a lot, especially seeing that he's injured.

This leaves the Yankees with Berra, which ain't bad. He is the most dangerous hitter in the American League. A tough game is his particular kind of bear meat. He chews along easy like then hits any pitch in the book out of sight.

But the Brooklyns got more. They got Roy Campanella and a block of Carl Furillo and Gil Hodges and those guys.

I think that's more than the Yankees have. Casey Stengel won it this year with a flock of moving around deals. He used three first basemen—Joe Collins, Eddie Robinson and Bill Skowron. He used five infielders and played them at every spot. The only one who did any sort of hitting at all was Gil McDougald.

The same in the outfield. The Yankees got a lot out of Hank Bauer. Over the season, his hustling wins plenty of games. But I don't think he's the kind that breaks up a World Series. Elston Howard and Irv Noren don't figure to do it, either.

But let me say one thing here. I'm talking about them in relation to Brooklyn in a World Series only. You have to remember that these fellows won a pennant from a tough Cleveland club. Are they the best in the American League?

I just don't think they're good enough for the Dodgers. Not enough punch at the plate, which counts so much.

Like in the 1934 World Series when I was striking out Hank Greenberg so much. Hank is all fancied up as Cleveland's general manager now, but back then, he was just another one of them poor Detroit hitlers trying to climb up in the air for my fast ball, which they couldn't see anyway.

So, in the last game he comes to bat and us Cardinals is way ahead, so I yell to Mickey Cochrane, the Tigers' manager, "Is this all you got? Can't you get a pinch-hitter for this fella?"

So, Ol' Diz sees Whitey Ford doing some winning and Yogi Berra a lot of hitting, but all those Brooklyns fellas will offset these two. And I want to tell all my friends over in Brooklyn that I'll sure be around to see them. They're going to have a lot of fun for the first time in their lives.

Haney Fired as Manager of Pirates; Indicate Top to Bottom Housecleaning

PITTSBURGH — A top to bottom housecleaning for the Pittsburgh Pirates appeared possible today in the wake of the firing of Fred Haney as manager of the perennial last-place club of the National League.

General Manager Branch Rickey notified Haney before Sunday's season-ending game with Brooklyn that the automatic renewal clause of the 57-year-old manager's contract had been cancelled because of the "uncertainty" of the situation facing the club.

Pirate President John Galbreath said flatly that the "club is not for sale." But he said directors will meet next month to make plans for the team and discuss contracts, including that of Rickey.

Rickey's Contract Up
Rickey, who brought Haney to the Pirates from Los Angeles three years ago to help with his youth drive aimed at getting the Pirates out of the cellar, is winding up a five-year contract. He has an option of remaining with

Durocher Nearly Breaks Down at Leaving Giants

NEW YORK — A hard-bitten baseball guy named Leo Durocher almost broke down and cried when it came time for him to leave the game.

Silently, with the strain showing in the lines on his face, the guy they called "The Lip" sat in front of his locker in the dressing room and shook hands with each of the New York Giant players as they walked up to him. "The Lip" muttered a low "so long" to each.

Out on the field at the Polo Grounds the Giants had just finished Sunday's season-ending doubleheader against the Phillies, and with it, Durocher's 7½ year reign as the Giants manager.

Bill Rigney, the new field boss of the New York Giants, said today he has no plans of personnel shakeups until he has looked over all the players in spring training.

President Can Live Long Life, Specialist Says

WASHINGTON (UP)—Dr. James Watt, head of the National Heart Institute, said today President Eisenhower still could live a long and useful life despite his heart attack.

There is no reason to believe otherwise, he said. The President suffered an attack of coronary thrombosis Saturday.

Watt said coronary thrombosis is caused by a temporary blocking of one of the two main arteries of the heart. It can be fatal but most people survive, he said.

Watt said half a dozen congressmen have had coronaries in the last few years, but "they are now living normal lives, just as if they never had them."

The heart specialist noted that Senator Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas suffered a coronary thrombosis last spring but now appears on the road to full recovery.

The two main coronary arteries are on each side of the heart. If the blood flowing through them is stopped—even temporarily—a heart seizure might result. If the attack is severe enough—and the flow is stopped completely—death usually results.

Nearly all attacks of coronary thrombosis are caused by arteriosclerosis. Doctors do not understand what brings about arteriosclerosis. But its effects are well known.

Arteriosclerosis injures the walls of the blood vessels so that fatty tissues develop. The fat tends to reduce the size of the vessel, sometimes plugging them entirely.

Blood clots usually brought on by arteriosclerosis, also can produce this jamming, or thrombosis.

President's Illness Raises Ancient Question of Who Will Run Gov't

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower's illness has raised an ancient question: Who runs the government when the President is ill?

The Constitution provides that the powers of the presidency "shall devolve" on the vice president in case of the chief executive's death, resignation, or "inability to discharge" the powers and duties of his office.

But no legal body ever has decided what constitutes "inability" to handle the presidency. Nor who shall decide when a president is in such a state.

It was disclosed Sunday by White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty that the problem of finding someone to make decisions for the President, if it becomes necessary, is under consideration. Hagerty has asked Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers for an opinion on "any action that might be necessary at any time for any delegation of powers by the President and 'if any are permitted.'"

Hagerty disclosed his action when asked what would happen if Mr. Eisenhower was not able to sign necessary official documents, or if his physicians refused to let him sign them.

Thus far in American history, only two presidents—James A. Garfield and Woodrow Wilson—have been unable to discharge their official duties for considerable periods of time.

Garfield was disabled July 2, 1881, when he was shot by an assassin. He died the following Sept. 19.

Wilson collapsed Sept. 26, 1919, while on a speaking tour defending the Versailles Treaty. He did not recover sufficiently to call his Cabinet until the following April.

WILL SHE HIT $64,000? Baseball-Smart Grandma Awes the Sports Writers

GRANDMA MYRTLE POWER catches up on her reading. She also likes to nestle up with Baseball Register and Baseball Guide.

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent
ROSLYN HEIGHTS, N. Y. — (NEA) — Mrs. Myrtle Power, the latest breath-taker on television's answer to do-it-yourself minting, "The $64,000 Question," is a 71-year-old native of Buford, Ga., who likes to nestle up in an easy chair with the Baseball Register, Sporting News, Baseball Guide and The Little Red Book.

She does this on her nights off from housekeeping for the William Drummonds of this Long Island town.

A gentle groan went up in sports departments across the nation when Mrs. Power, with the gleam of a hungry contestant, grabbed at announcer Hal March's questions and moved up to the $22,000 spot. There are few sports guys who could take 30 seconds and then tell you that Walter Dropo of the White Sox and Manager Pinky Higgins of Boston hold the major league record for consecutive hits — 12.

The $16,000 question, which Myrt, as she prefers to be called, breezed through easily wasn't as hard. All she had to do, with a flood of money on the line, was tell March the five players Carl Hubbell struck out in succession during the 1934 All-Star game. Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, who was warming up to relieve Hubbell at the time, couldn't recall the right answer. "I was watching the show but I couldn't come up with the right answer," says Diz. "I had Bill Dickey as one of the five. Imagine an old Grandma knowing more than Ol' Diz."

Mrs. Power's lifting Southern tones brought forth the correct answer to that one. Her showing was buried under the tidal wave of publicity which engulfed Capt. Richard McCutchen, the Marine who broke the game wide open by taking it all.

But Mrs. Power now challenges McCutchen and Cino Prato, the $32,000 operative shoemaker.

The big question TV fans ask, of course, is how a 71-year-old grandmother would be an expert in the implausible subject of baseball.

"I have been a baseball fan for 60 years now," she drawls. "Buford is only 29 miles from Atlanta and I always went to see the Crackers (Atlanta's minor league team) play. My sons—I have three, you know, and a daughter, too—were always talking baseball."

"It's only natural I'd follow it. Why, Ty Cobb comes from Georgia. That should be reason enough. He's the greatest we ever had."

Mrs. Power has seen two games a week since the season started. The other five days, radio and television keep her well informed of diamond doings.

But how, a reporter asked, is Mrs. Power able to be an expert on the reams of agate-type records which the game has compiled?

Heavy Rains In Texas Cause Flash Floods

By United Press
Rain fell from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains today and sent flash floods racing through several Texas cities.

The rains in Texas were the heaviest in recent years, measuring up to 10 inches from the Red River Valley's midsection southward to Abilene.

Thousands of persons were evacuated from their homes, and highways around Olney, Graham, and Abilene were under as much as 5 feet of water. The mammoth runoff posed a flood threat in south Texas, where warnings were posted along the Nueces River and the Rio Grande covered the International Bridge at Del Rio.

Meanwhile, Hurricane Janet's death toll in the Windward Islands rose to at least 104. The storm, carrying top winds of 110 m.p.h., was roaring through the open Caribbean Sea today, aimed in the general direction of Jamaica.

In the west Pacific, the strongest typhoon of the season grazed the historic isle of Iwo Jima and then took off aimed at Tokyo. The storm packs top winds of 150 m.p.h.

The young autumn season was getting off to a brisk start in this country, producing 30 and 40-degree temperatures from New England through the Great Lakes and across the plains into the Rockies.

Adm. Raeder, Nazi War Criminal, Freed from Prison

BERLIN — The four occupation powers today released former German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, 79, from Spandau Prison because of his age and health, a British spokesman announced.

Raeder, who planned the invasion of Norway, was sentenced to life imprisonment as a war criminal and placed in Spandau Prison with other top Nazis.

He was sentenced on Oct. 1, 1946, by the four-power International Tribunal at Nuremberg.

The four powers recently agreed to make life easier for the Spandau Prison inmates because of their poor health and their advanced age.

Others in the prison with Raeder were Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's deputy, Baron Constantin von Neurath, Baldur von Schirach, Walter Funk and Albert Speer.

All of the famous prisoners were tried on four counts: 1. Conspiring to commit crimes against peace, war crimes and crimes against humanity; 2. Planning, initiating or waging a war of aggression; 3. Violating the laws or customs of war; 4. Commission of crimes against humanity through the murder or enslavement of civilians.

Raeder was found guilty of counts one, two and three.

Recapture Inmate Who Escaped From Menard Prison

CHESTER, Ill. — A convict who escaped from Menard State Prison Sunday by climbing over a wall was recaptured this morning.

Richard Ross, 23, was the second Menard inmate to escape within four days. Francis Messersmith, 27, was recaptured Saturday after three days of freedom.

A posse of prison guards and state police captured Ross about 10 a. m. today in a rough field on the prison farm. A state police plane aided in the search and roadblocks were set up after his escape was discovered.

Warden Ross Randolph said Ross climbed over a wire fence and the main prison wall at the end of a recreation period Sunday. Randolph said he will investigate the circumstances and guards involved in the escape.

The warden said the posse which numbered up to 100 men kept Ross from trying to leave the field where he was found in a ditch.

Ross was sentenced to Joliet State Prison for burglary and larceny and transferred to Menard in June. Randolph said he was considered dangerous because he had threatened the sheriff and State's attorney of McDonough County, from which he was sentenced.

Auto Collides With Submarine

DETROIT — Police reported today that an automobile collided with a submarine.

Israeli Gov't Announces Rich Oil Discovery in Barren Negev Desert

TEL AVIV, Israel — The Israeli government announced today that drillers, including numerous American investors, have struck oil in the barren Negev desert—oil of a quality that may equal that of the rich Arab states to the east.

A rich oil find in the red and rocky wasteland of Biblical renown has been one of this young nation's strongest hopes in its quest for economic self-sufficiency.

Today Development Minister Dov Yossef formally announced that the Laidoth Oil Co., which includes a number of American investors, had struck oil in the Halatz settlement on the Negev desert.

He said the oil was of a quality of A. P. I. 30.5 which equals the quality of the rich pools in Kuwait, an independent Arab state on the Persian Gulf. It was found at a depth of 4,906 feet in the Halatz settlement.

Israel began to develop the arid desert region soon after the nation became independent. Deep wells were drilled and water was piped to the desert settlements near the borders of Egypt and Jordan.

The once-barren desert produced grain and fruit but not enough to make Israel financially independent. Because the desert closely resembles the oil-producing deserts on the Arabian Peninsula the government ordered that oil drilling operations begin.

Geologists had been predicting the discovery of oil in the area for more than a century, and an official U. S. exploratory team found evidence of oil as early as 1849.

But two world wars and the resulting Israeli-Arab wars bogged down the search.
